EMANCIPATION DAY

"Honor and fame from no conditions rise Act well your part, there all honor lies." Accept as your rule in life, the motto, "To be, rather than to seem to be." Do not assume titles which are incompatible with the condition in which you find yourselves. Any avocation in life is worthy until it undertakes to masquerade in borrowed finery which does not fit. Whenever it does, it merits and re ceives a just condemnation and becomes ridiculous. Think of a burly butcher in Ar mour's slaughter-house introducing himself as the gentleman what sticks the pigs!

Work! for the stains of labor are badges which denote heroism in the battle for existence. Work! for honest toil is the price of perfect freedom-freedom from the canker of care and want, freedom from that still remembered and detested former state, when it was said of you and yours-

"And thus they pled in sluggish misery,
Rotting from sire to son and age to age,
Proud of their trampled nature, and so die,
Bequeathing their hereditary rage
To a new race of unborn slaves,"

Pray! For prayer is the exercise of that noblest and most perfected freedom which helps to unlock the shackles of sin and iniquity and permits emancipated humanity to enjoy the bliss of a free and intimate association with God Himself and prepares the suppliant for an everlasting freedom from the ills which fret the mind and disease the body-in that land of celestial liberty where-

"The wicked cease from troubling And the weary are at rest."
